The image shows a screenshot of a FEMA Fact Sheet. The header includes the FEMA logo and the text 'FEMA Fact Sheet'. The title of the document is 'Salvaging Water-Damaged Family Valuables and Heirlooms'. The text discusses the importance of salvaging cherished items like photographs and letters after disasters like floods, hurricanes, or tornadoes. It provides basic guidelines for searchers and offers a link to a media library for more information. A photograph shows several framed pictures and other items lying on the ground, covered in mud and debris, illustrating the damage described in the text.

Fact Sheet

Salvaging Water-Damaged Family Valuables and Heirlooms

The losses that are the result of disasters are usually measured in dollars, but often the losses that matter the most are the cherished items and heirlooms that are closest to the hearts of individuals and families. Although these treasured items may be damaged in floods, hurricanes, or tornadoes, it is often possible to salvage them. With a little patience, prompt action, and professional tips, saving treasured photographs, letters, and other irreplaceable objects is possible, although it may involve a follow-up consultation with a conservator.
